GCxGC is a powerful multidimensional technique that combines two independent separations to accurately analyze highly complex samples. By choosing a primary and a secondary column with differing (orthogonal) stationary phases, it is possible to identify analytes that simply cannot be separated by standard one- dimensional chromatography.

Restek GCxGC secondary columns can be matched with any Restek Rbx® or Rxi® primary column to create the perfect orthogonal separation for your application. And with this special offer, you can get a free secondary column for every primary column you order!
